I want to run away,
Into the woods,
Where selfish don't sing,
Greedy don't sell,
Unkind don't serve,
Wicked don't exist,
Where only the bells ring,
Swings of melody,
Jingles of care,
Tunes of Love.
I want to run away.

Do you get such thoughts and feelings too?

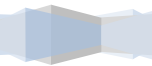

*“If you can follow the silence,
If you can love the hate,
If there is thyself in those eyes,
If gestures make the talk,
If you can sparkle in the bright,
If you can breathe the breathe,
If you can forget who you are,
You have started the RUN.”*

0. Preface

Ready???

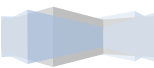

Get!

Set!!

Go!!!

The weird part is no one has told us this and still we have been running. In this unannounced sprint we have been running like a horse, like a snail, like a hare, like a tortoise, like an ass as well. If you know what I mean! If you are thinking it has an impressive profound logic out there, then stop! I just mean to imply that we behave like different animals in the ‘run’ of our lives.

With changing generation we have reached a state where we need recurrent inspirations. I missed to add “extremely” to that sentence. We need extremely recurrent and periodic inspirations. Most of our routines are short-lived. I really don’t know what has led us there but we are just there. It’s just like skipping the preface of the book and getting right to the story! So why I did not wanted to write a ‘Preface’.

But it came out as a tradition. Now if you are thinking why suddenly out of the blue this paragraph appeared, then I don’t know! It’s a ‘disconnected random world’.

Wait! Does it mean this is going to be a self help book?

Nahh! (Can be read as definitely Nahh!)

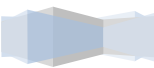

I don’t know to what category this narrative would belong to. All I can say is, proudly, ‘This isn’t some fake click-bait online crap’. It was one fine day,  late night actually, while I was travelling back to hometown and a WhatsApp conversation with a ‘good’ friend triggered me to put in writing with reference to this.

I have this concept of ‘Run’ and all I want to do is to explain what it is and what it means in a very (read ‘very’ in a very stressed and stretched expression) detailed and to the point analysis.

Again, Wait! Do I mean I need a book to explain what is ‘Run’? That is what exactly even Vishwanath asked me when I said I would write a book on ‘Run’ in our WhatsApp conversation. When I asked myself that may be a blog editorial would still do, I was positively confident that it would be much longer for that. (Now here is a tiny modest shameless advertisement. You can visit and follow my blog at: itsphblog.wordpress.com).

Okay. Let’s RUN. I am loving it!

1. Run, It could be a BOMB

“Move at a speed faster than a walk, never having both or all the feet on the ground at the same time”.

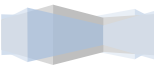

Yes. That is what a dictionary meaning of ‘run’ is. Let us carefully break that definition of run into several components, segregate the parts of speech and analyze them. LOL. No! We are not going to do that. Only for the sake of completeness we saw the definition of run. We are not going to revisit THAT definition again.

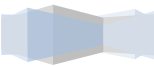

Now come on, these definitions cut the creativity and give a restricted perspective. We sure can't blame the definitions for that. It aptly makes sense that a definition cannot cover every aspect and can only give an appropriate abstract summary of what it defines.

Why is 'Bomb' in the title? If that is what you are observing and thinking in mind, gosh! You are a keen observer! (Gulp! Fake appreciation you see!).

Now that bomb is just a metaphor indicating that needs an escape from. It could be a competition, a filthy smell, someone unwanted coming online, an advertisement phone call, morning alarm, a thief, green tea, diet, a dog, a human being whom you favor not to meet, may be a real bomb as well and the list breeds. We took the definition of the run and we have a metaphor associated to it to signify a running away for/from something. This is the very basic run-away. Why do we run away? Not the concern at this point!

Cutting out all the cosmetics for a summary, what I all in all want to say is that this book is NOT about this definitional run. It is NOT about the usual running we do. It is NOT the running for health and fitness too.

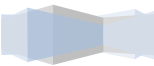

2. Inspirations, WTF

This run is definitely not an inspirational tale of a tale. I don't know where the days which inspired us for longer and stronger goals are!!? Today, it's like we are motivated and blinks, it's gone!

The truth behind the scene

One reason is that mind somehow does not agree to the subject of the inspire-r. We know that it was just a speech and inspire-r does not himself follow what he preaches which is more than ninety percent true in today's generation. You might already have examples in your mind by now. We know that it was just for a promotion and advertisement of some brand and it's pretty much known that it was a paid service. Or it is that it was too much or too little to follow and it was way beyond our concerns. May be we decided to 'like' and 'comment' about it on social media, appreciate it there, share it and forget as early as possible. To put that in one phrase, "We just don't care!"

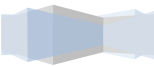

The lie in-front of the scene

The other reason being, we are too impatient and our life style has changed us so much that we hardly agree to anything. Or it could be the little ego about 'I' being more accurate than the inspiration. We are not completely open to other things though we pretend to accept them. There is always a little bias towards our own self claims. Or we are so impatient that we pretend as if we hardly heard it. Or that we are too busy to read or to do or to follow that. To put all that in one phrase again, "We just don't care!"

The solution

A prepared mind picks only the best of every core and nook. There should be some way

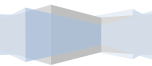

- to be more patient,
- listen to things carefully,
- not to keep our lives too busy than required,
- have attention to details,

- read more and more,
- do things of love more often

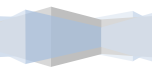

And these are the kind of suggestions given to one. Now these are too lame suggestions for today's world. Effectively, we do not want to accept other's solution to be embedded in our lives. We have started living our life in such a customized way that only we can give solutions to our problems. Though not completely, it's mostly that!

Before we move on to anything else let us talk a little more about that customized lives we are living. Our horizons have so much expanded that if we want to feed one day activity of our life to a machine, we would have had at hand a thousand variables. Our state of mind depends on how those variables are set for the day. We live in a state where no other second person would have a similar setting. Let us not debate if it is good or bad. That is how the current design of our world is and it has kind of become inevitable to accept it and go with the flow.

With this dynamic life style, we ourselves stand as the best judge for majority of decisions we are believed to take. Order! Order!! Order!!!

Coming back to inspirations, they can come from many petite things. Like a video you watched on internet, like from a course you took, from a kid playing with little toys etc and etc. Summing up, it is the run for inspirations and the run to do better. And yes! It is NOT this run I am talking about or want to talk about in this book.

3. The 'F' Run

Remove the alphabet 'L' from LIFE. What do we get? Nonsense!

Similar is the story with 'I' and 'E'.

But remove the alphabet 'F' from life. What we have is a lie.

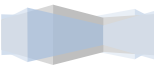

What is the "F" word then?

F as Force

F is the force to build on what we intend to do in life. If we want our life story to be a best seller then there is a need of penultimate force in it. If not the force then we cannot derive the energy and we will just be an unnoticed mass lying around. This force will come from various means. Life is a journey about finding those foreseeable forces.

F as Fun

Postponing things for next time is not an unavoidable choice. It is just a lazy and hasty decision. If we cannot find a line of attack this time, things are apparent to repeat the same in a similar way next time as well. If something is to be enjoyed then it has to be at this instance. If some reason has postponed the work today then something else will postpone it tomorrow. Our hands need to put that signature of willingness right now and such a pen exists right within us.

F as Find

‘Find’ is the key. Well, there is no lock. So the key fits in everywhere. What you need to show to the world is that you took a lot of trouble to first design the lock and then unlocked it. The sooner the realization, the faster we have the medicine for the unknown disease. ‘Find’ is a multi meaning word. One needs to dig deep to ‘find’ them all.

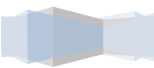

F as Whatever

As you have already realized, it’s just a word play. Whatever it is, it is supposed to be lived. The LIFE. It’s about which of the F you allow to sink in. Fab, Fun, Force, Find, Fix, Feel, Feed or Fcuk, whatever!

Now we DONT want to discuss more about this 'F-Run' of life. It's messy and unclean and stinking and filled with bundle of jargons.

Run has a color,

Run has a measure.

Run washes the color,

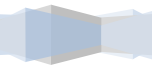

Run exceeds the measure.

Run demands a new color,

Run questions the measure.

Dye with a new color,

Forget the measure.

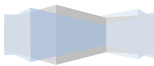

4. The Running Goat

They (Don't ask who!) say we all are running. Life is a run. We all run with our own rationale. One runs to the money, other runs for the money and another runs away from the money. Runs have been defined of numerous kinds.

The thing is, we all leave the poop behind the run and it is not necessary that it has to stink. It can also be a designer poop just like the goat decorates its path with round designer poop balls. We all are living an intrinsically complicated life. Though it could be simple at many instances, we just love complicating them and garnishing with more issues as cherry toppings. On top of all that we also have our near and dear ones who come and sprinkle some chili flakes adding more deliciousness.

But, be kind. Digest them all. Never complain. Enjoy that taste and make sure that what you poop from that is a non stinky dish. Now we know that it is impossible to have a non smelly poop. It is called so for a reason.

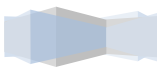

But there lies the invention. They are our life lessons. If we make it smell bad then we will be the one to deal with it. The smell can be concealed and decorated with a silver foil. Give out your experienced life lessons in the most presentable way. That is how some have been successful in being a philosopher. They know how to tell the exact stories. We all cry behind the scene and we should know how to make a mock-tail out of those tears in front of the scene.

People are attracted to good looking things no matter how bad the taste is. Or put it the other way, we have taste buds to pretty much swallow anything of any kind.

The gist here is the lesson to learn from goats poop. Presentation matters. It is also about the way we give the impression of being. There still anyways will be some to say, 'It's still a Poop!' Now that does not matter. We can be deaf to those as they are the ones who are going to say for 'anything in the world' because it is you!

This is an interesting run. And the book is NOT about this!

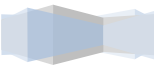

5. Being Dumb Ass

I am not sure this phrase would still hold well for an ass, unless you refer to a totally different ass there. I have seen people behaving worst. Let's stop blaming ass as dumb. If looks, shape, size, form etc did not count, there could be some asses better rated than humans. And we should accept that honestly. Only WE have the capability to accept and improve if we opt to, as compared against an actual ass.

Well, we will see some asses getting ahead of us. Actually they take the prize too. Then they start a new race and win there too. 'How is that ass able to do that!' we keep wondering. And one fine day we realize that 'that ass!' is  not even running the race but still winning. Weird. What kind of shitty road is that? Wait; are we the one on the shitty road? Or is it because that kind of crowd is now becoming the majority? Why God why? Why some things are never understood?

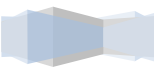

We wonder how that ass managed to grab that position. Sometimes we keep searching if it has brain and we end up thinking maybe it's the age. Then we think maybe it was politics. But how can the mass be wrong? Was that ass wearing some sort of mask before getting there? Yes. That could be it! Oh, I know how you have mentally imagined a few faces already. I was having a slide show running while writing this. Let's take a lesson from this. Let's be more careful next time. If we were ever offered such a position next time then let's not try to be an ass. (How ass am I saying or suggesting so?) Or wait. Are we already an ass for someone? Possibly!

This is a run for positions. When we get a promotion it is our responsibility to be worth it. Or take a little time and prove the worth of it and do the works that designation demands. That's how we can escape from not being an ass. The position I refer is not only the one at work. Its personal life positions too.

Okay, you got me. I surrender. Let's finish this. This book is NOT referring to this kind of 'run'. But it was necessary to understand that.

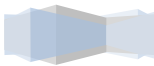

6. The Hair and the Tortoise

Yes. It was supposed to be Hare. Not hair. Mistakes happen. It's a character mistake here. But you see that 'i' and 'e', though single character, bring a lot of changes to the meaning.

But anyways, you know the story right!? The tortoise wins. Then there were second version stories made up with hare winning or tortoise getting an engineering seat under sports quota etc etc etc. This simple story has a lot of morale in it. Has or had? Ask a software engineer. If you tell him slowly and steadily develop an app then someone else will take away the market before the app is ready for release. A slow plan can make an interesting work obsolete. The morale of slow and steady does not match or cannot be applied at every context.

Now that is intelligence. That is the change we have evolved to. Not many would understand where exactly to be slow and steady. Don't read a single book for more than a month for it will lose its essence. If you are delayed in your work only because someone else also involved in the work is delaying, then you need to think of a solution for that. Staying idle and watching over the time lapse is not the explanation. Being timely in works we carry out is or could be.

Be quick in shopping. Be a quick learner. Be quick in adapting to new things. Be fast in reaching the deadlines. Take the decision quick. If we keep delaying then things lose the essence. It is just like planning to watch a movie while it is trending and not after ten years down the line. We have a lot ahead to achieve. There are moments to be enjoyed now and they will never come back in the same way.

Be slow and steady with patience. Listen to things carefully and with intent to follow them. Be patient enough to understand the perspectives put forth by others. Be steady when you exercise or do yoga. Be slow and steady while you drive.

Hare and tortoise did run. Tortoise did win. This story might have moral well tailored to suitable context. When we tell this story to someone, we need to make sure that we are using the right context. This is a run, the run to prove thyself. This book is NOT about this kind of 'run'.

You have been stealing the time.

You have been stealing the precious.

You are a thief!

Now what you got to do is,

Run.

7. The Dramatic Run

I hope you know a movie where a hero chases the heroine or a villain chases the hero or some 'x' character runs for 'y' and so on. Movies which have story of characters that keep running in the forest, railway stations, roads, in jeeps, well, that is exciting to watch. We have loved that. We might have also imagined ourselves in those situations and enjoyed the movie more.

There is a rush in the run and it's amazing. You might have not observed it keenly but we do all have such similar situations going on in our real life too. Maybe we don't see people literally running but there is that phenomenon. Unlike movie there is no hurry to complete things in 140 minutes or so. So in real life things take unhurried pace with proper fine-tuning to characters.

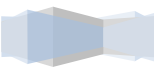

Some do an emotional run to seek attention. Some do it for popularity. Some of them are running to hit a target on a dart board which they have created for their own.

Running is a drug. It's an addiction. The thing is that this run does not have a finish line. It just has some break points for rest and moving ahead. We all do enjoy this run. It is dramatic and fun. There are swings of emotions reaching opposite ends with swag while this run is in progress. That's the cries and smiles of our journey.

Do you have the shoes? Can it sustain your run? Shoes man! You need them. You got to have good ones. A pair of good shoe can make your run look nice and smooth. Now shoe here is not a metaphor for something. I mean it.

Let's keep in mind that if we find our run to be too boring then we shall feel free to dance a bit in between. It is generally said that it is not the destination but journey that matters. But reaching a heart rejoicing destination is beautiful too. And yes, there is NO intention to speak about this kind of run in this book. Not more.

8. Nasty Experts

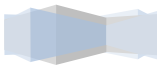

We can always demonstrate that we are an expert. We can be ignorant to other's advices and follow exactly what we fancy to do. We can just be blunt and don't even urge to listen to what others have a say about. Because there are people tied to one and they will follow it anyways. What I mean by tied is it could be people from professional circle who will have to take the commands or maybe its being head of the family and it is believed that others have to listen to with no obligation. At first we can say that we are open to suggestions and then defend with arrogance if any is made. That's kind of cute.

There will be suppressed voices around and the unhappy people who pretend to smile because it kind of becomes inevitable. Expertise has a thin line where it can easily become nasty. Unwanted fart is also nasty. That's still kind of cute.

A very realistic and live example is I am no good or have any authority to write these things in a book and complain about the system or the society. I am that society.

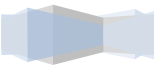

I am a nasty expert too! We can always agree to disagree, to the thoughts and opinions.

But still that is kind of cute.

I suppose being expert comes with kindness. It comes with modesty. It comes with the feeling that 'I have a lot more to work'. It's with a shoulder of responsibility. Some will never agree to it. The way we make a way for compliments, we should for comments too. So as my obligation I am adding it again, it is cute.

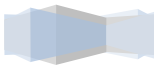

I was not sure if this was needed here. It just came out with the flow. Let's not further drag on it. This book is NOT about this run.

9. The Rise of Stupidity

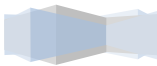

If you don't agree on the title, go online and open a social networking site or some e-newspapers you will see all sponsored posts appearing like, 'You will be amazed to see what happened next', 'see how x takes down y on  twitter', one criticizing another whom you like/dislike, some posts to trigger and raise your blood pressure, okay, many such crappy and creepy stuff. It is very easy to fall into this steep-y deep-y hole. They trigger and play with sentiments and emotions.

Media has found a new way of being famous and it's damn easy. There is no need of any research. There is no need of reading. There is no need to toil and slog day and night to make a good article. You just need to load some crap which can bring difference of opinions between two communities, exploit the weakness and initiate a small debate. For the remaining part, readers will carry it forward while the writers can move on to next field. There has been a lot of exploitation of resources in an unreasonable way.

It feels as if someone has pointed a gun at writers head and said, “If you don’t bring a thousand hits to the site in next few hours, you will be shot.” Then writes shits out of scare and puts on same on web. It’s so easy to get famous these days. Put something that hurts the sentiment of a larger community and Hola! Such a cheap trick! Tell me! Isn’t it a rise of stupidity? Life was so much better without all these. I miss those days.

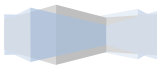

I have a better proof for the rise as well. One fine day, I blocked all such sites from my account which make sensational news out of nothing and mislead its readers. I felt so happy and relieved. Next day morning I saw few more sites doing the same and I blocked again. I also kept wondering why they are appearing in my feed when I am not at all interested. Neither had I subscribed to them nor had visited similar pages in the past. Then the best thing I could do was to ignore. I feel hopeless at times. It’s my account and I cannot have the control the way I want. Why do I see all sponsored posts? May be one day I will have to pay to see my own data separated out from the promotional posts.

At times I worry. What if these people tomorrow start a Media-101 course? LOL. Disaster isn't it? They are going to train a pack of same generation idiots. And then the cycle continues and grows.

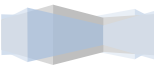

There is also a newly noticed trend on web. Out of all the things presented to the reader, he only picks the phrase which is offensive, ignores the context, makes a story out of it and posts it online. He does not forget to add some of his own intuitions to it. Then this gets shared across and let's not talk about the later. Let's just say its stupidity everywhere. People online have become so much offensive. It's a dirty online game. At times I guess its politics. At times I feel very soon brain surgery will become too easy as you just need to replace it with a pile of hardened shit. Maybe I have lost my brain. Maybe! Very much! LOL. And I smile. Laugh. Can't help, isn't it?

If you ask a question, "Will the real journalism please stand up!" then at miles far away you will see few people standing. We need to somehow carry them to front or may be its all lost and gone. It's the end of real journalism and this is the new definition. The people who were supposed to reach out the community for better means have been majorly contaminated. The future generation education is going to have a lot of impact.

It's dirty and we do NOT want to talk about this run in the book.

Night runs for the target,

Relays the day.

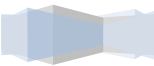

Day runs for the target,

Relays the night.

Day and Night have began the race,

They bring the challenge,

Can you face?

10. Lazy Bug

I shall clear those mails tomorrow.

I will reply to that message tomorrow.

I shall call and congratulate later.

I shall send my regards later in the evening.

I shall assign that work to someone else.

I shall clean the drawer later.

I shall do that tomorrow.

It feels like I have noted down requirements of a project. May be it is. The project of a 'Lazy Bug'. We all do that. We pretend as if there is something really important to be done (mostly doing nothing) and postpone a few things until we forget, ignore or it's really late.

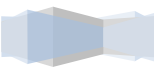

They don't actually take time than expected. They could be done on the go, pulling out few seconds in our adjustable routine. But somehow being lazy has become kind of part of our routine. Our works environment sucks so much of our energy that at the end of our day we are too tired even to make a call. Brain gets so much saturated that all it can do is fight with family and take the saturation out. Or stay dumb and deaf and search for a bed and just end the day.

There is no one to blame for this. The high demanding work has created the environment competitive enough to make several sacrifices just to sustain in it. Those sacrifices are coming with a lot of costs and effects. The age to look old has drastically come down.

The definition of family is changing. We have started celebrating several days which we once did not even care about. There could be a lot of debate on good and bad of it. But we are too lazy even to think on it. We just want to work and secure the future and that is coming with lot of sacrifices.

It's not that we are lazy. We are working like never before. But the world is offering us so many duties that we have become hyper active to a few leaving behind inevitable laziness to others.

So much of laziness! Let's NOT get lazy and postpone the discussion of run we actually intend to.

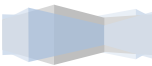

11. The Free Run

They say it's the 'run'. They also say, 'run for your passion. Do not follow someone's path because they were successful in it. The only mantra is dedication. Don't let your mind freely wander just anywhere. Be it in the field of your choice'.

Can you believe that there is a theory for everything? There is example and counter example for every case. Internet can endow with an image of any kind we want. There have been few people who have been an embarrassment to the society. There have been people who have been mocked worldwide. Where is this free run leading to? Is it been too much of freeness and now needs a fence? The freedom of speech has been exploited in a lot broader sense and with that freeness cometh the distrust.

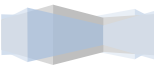

'There is no free lunch'. I love this quote so much. Everything has to be earned. Happiness is earned. Sorrows are earned too. Dedication earns success. Ignorance earns failure. If something is bringing a lot of free coupons then, hey, watch out. No mail can give us million dollars. Clicking a link won't give us discounts. Sharing a post does not change color to golden. Where the utilization of education is if we still don't believe that there is 'no free lunch'? Or it is a clear indication of one's common sense being sucked out forever.

As we start keeping a baby step in a field and even if we smell a little success, suddenly we have an opinion on every other thing. We make it public as well by posting on social networking sites, like as if it matters and then there are people showering emotions on it. This is sure not good for society and god's sake. Like for example, I don't think it's a good idea for a doctor, politician or scientists to write a movie review in public unless asked. Do you agree with me?

Look at everything a free mind can do. It can make one say, "These are purely my opinions and no offence, but that song is bad". A free run can make a director and his movie crew to get into very cheap publicity stunts.

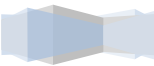

It was said it's going to be a very healthy discussion. Everyone is going to talk about the issue and put forth the opinions in a very health manner. The reports said things were in control. Only that the judge was found murdered the very next day.

A free run. The world is beautiful. It is so beautiful that it makes you pay for your mistakes in no time. The louder one mocks, the faster the karma gets the deserving treat. That karma is sure a five letter word! (You know what I mean, right?)

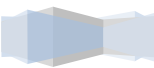

Isn't life so much exciting when we follow a sport? That adrenaline rush we go through when our support plays is priceless. That little cries when lost and bundle of happiness when the game was won is a treasured moment of life. That is an exciting free run of carefree mind.

I remember how in school days sometimes, the morning sessions used to be so long that by afternoon, we used to feel it was time to go home. Only on opening the lunch box we used to realize that lunch break is not over yet. Then with amaze we used to tell everyone around and they with surprise used to open their lunch box and confirm that we really had a long day. It was the days where the time was known only through the bell ring. One having a hand watch was like a celebrity. Mind and body used to be excited even for smaller things. It is these kinds of things which a free mind should actually bring.

It a free run of a free mind. Run the way you want. Run this page down. Run it! I say, just run it! And yes, we DONT want to talk about a free run. It's a free run with no conditions. Feel free to tell me I was wrong. I would look out for the right!

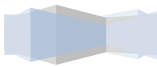

12. The Ruins

We should not form opinions only because we heard it from someone. If one has been bad to another it does not mean it is going to be the same with us too. We never knew the environment under which the opinions were formed. There have been characters where people love despite of all deceives.

No character can be defined. No one is constant. We are not robots to stay programmed. We are going to change with time, experience and environment. No one has one fixed features and characteristics. Given that as the scenario, it is not wise to judge someone. Good, bad, decent, caring, ignoring etc other emotions, everyone is proper mixture of it. Caring at one is balanced with ignorant at other side. Judging someone is definitely not a wise decision. It definitely isn't wise.

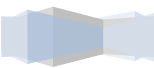

Leave it to people who get paid for doing such things like in reality shows, courts, professors and other around. It is responsibility of the higher authority to make sure that the right ass is placed on the seat to judge.

There is a match for every frequency. People with same likings will form a cluster. If we don't belong to one kind then we should not complain. We should let them be happy and look for one of our kind. If we express to something as the 'most non-sense ever', there will be someone else having exactly the same opinion for the group of our kind.

Run has associated ruins to it. Whenever we take a decision, it balances out with proper's and improper. It's like a war. One dies and other survives. One rejoices and other cries. We have been part of this life running with ruins.

Let's NOT discuss these ruins more in length as it is not part of our interest of study.

He kept running.

He never looked at either side.

All he had was destination in mind.

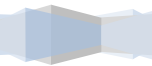

He kept running.

He lived in his own world.

He hardly cared for another.

He kept running.

He died.

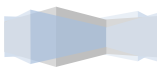

13. What's Cooking in There?

Though metamorphic-ally the title talks about ‘what’s happening’, we actually want to talk about cooking here. Is it not a magnificent feeling when the dish we served makes a few tummies happy and their acknowledgements make one contented about life?

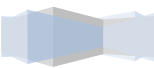

This should happen with everyone. Well, we should never state a reason that we don’t know how to cook! “Everyone must cook! For it an essential skill every soul has to enjoy.” Cooking can teach us a lot. It could be a very simple dish but one has to have a favorite kitchen cook. It is a balance of ingredients to give a desired taste which would never happen even if one goes missing. It is about understanding the importance of salt. Trust me, we would have been so much unhappy if salt was not present and there was no replacement to it. Something here of worth mentioning is that salt is also one of the cheaply available ingredient.

Once when we cook few dishes, automatically our mind moves for experimenting. We then want to try out something new. We start picking up all new techniques. We become a foodie. Everyone must be a foodie. There is no great pleasure than good food. There is no great pleasure than being a chef of good food. Behind every good food there is a dirty mess in the sink. The chef is not at all unhappy about that mess. It was that mess which created a mouth watering dish and moreover that mess can be cleaned. Behind a beautiful presentation there were several techniques which though are not quite evident by the way it looks, but they sink in while you taste.

The work place is just like kitchen. For better understanding and correlation one has to cook! Kitchen is an exhilarating run. It has literally all the spices, vegetables and ingredients that can make good food. It is NOT this run we want to talk about in this book.

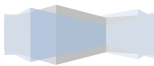

14. How Smelly Are You?

What's your odour? How do you smell? It is very fundamental to associate a smell to our self because others will do it anyway. If we do not have our own then the one which people associate will become that of ours. It is very rare that people are going to rate us with a perfume smell. Even if we do a zillion good things, a past minor mistake is enough to give a stinking smell.

Maybe the perfume does not exist. There is only stinking smell. So we should make sure to keep our surrounding away from all the stinking smells. We might not be able to keep that away. But we can sure apply some perfume to our self so that we avoid all those stinky smells. And most importantly we should not expect others to smell us good, if we our self are stinky.

Here is a small story. One there lived a laptop. Wi-fi device was its best friend. It used to bring internet to the laptop. They used to enjoy each other's company. One fine day a better Wi-fi device was installed and previous one was sold out. The new Wi-fi device and laptop could not be good friends as laptop specifications were low for the new Wi-fi device.

Though there were no issues in bringing the internet to laptop, the combination somehow looked odd. There was a lot of generation gap. Laptop had developed an inferiority complex. Very soon laptop was replaced with a new one and the same person who had purchased the old Wi-fi device had purchased this laptop too. New device had found a new friend and older one got its friend back. They both were happy but however it was not long.

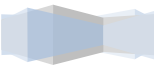

The cycle kept repeating. I don't want to explain what this story signifies. Very soon the story might get outdated because of generation gap. It is important that we stick to our generation where similar cultures are valued. Else it becomes stinky.

Learning how to converse in a group has always been a challenge. Now things are different. Learning how to listen in a group is also a challenge. Learning how to interpret things and to stay with open mind is also a challenge. Not taking anything personal is also a challenge. Learning how not to repeatedly point out at someone else mistake is also a challenge. We have many to learn isn't it??

Let's NOT make this smelly run part of our run.

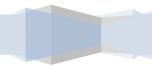

15. Don't Be Surprised

Dear You,

One fine day, someone might take your photograph, crop and edit a few things and share it saying you have a cancer and ask people to like and comment. Don't be surprised. Just like you liked a photo shopped snake with three heads, you will have to like this too.

One fine day, someone will start spreading all bad things about you. You might never know how they will convert one of your treasured memories to a rumor that will burn you right from heart to mind. Don't be surprised. You will have to accept your story just like you believed and accepted someone else's story.

One fine day, you will hear bad stories about your favorite hero. You might not easily trust them. You will start searching for things which say that was not the truth.

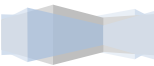

Sit back and think, was your behavior the same when you heard bad stories about someone whom you did not like. Don't be surprised!

One fine day, one who made you smile will make you cry. Accept it the same way, the very same way you accepted the smile. Don't be surprised. You are crying only because back then, you had smiled.

One fine day, you will feel alone. You will feel there is no one for you and you are on your own. All your thoughts get trapped. You will feel a few things have started making sense at the moment which once did not. Don't be surprised. Everyone goes through this. But not everyone shares it. Intelligent ones know that it is a passing cloud.

One fine day, you will get humiliated. People, who used to laugh at your back, now laugh on your face. Though you show it out with smiling face, your heart sits inside like a questioned monkey. Don't be surprised. Accept it. You have laughed once too.

One fine day, life will bring you realizations. You will understand what 'mature' means and the true essence of it.

One fine day, you will fall in love. Really! Accept with open arms.

Don't be surprised!

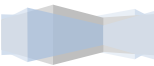

She was beautiful.

He was handsome.

Separated by color and race,

United by hearts,

They Run.

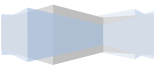

16. Smells of Free Suggestions

Why does somebody do that? Do you ask, Do WHAT??? Let me explain! I am referring to the title here.

Person A needs some assist and suggestions with respect to a problem. 'A' seeks the help from person 'B'. Person 'B' being good and modest does all the research and suggests the best solution to the problem. Person 'A' does not even bother and ignores. 'A' finally does what comes into his mind. Now put yourself in the shoes of both person A and B and think what went wrong.

Someone has purchased a new car and they are happy. It seems that they have liked this model of car a lot. What we need to do is just compliment them. Not suggest them there was a better model. Let's not be sick! Let's not complain on others choice. Let's not mock on what others have decided for themselves. Let's not interfere in other's family decisions until and unless we were specifically asked. Every decision has its ups and downs. One is supposed to enjoy both in the journey. There is no need that we poke our nose into it and be an extra obstacle.

It's a cruel, selfish and mean world. If there is someone who is there who always takes time out for us in helping and be with us while in need, 'respect and attention' is what we need to give back. It takes time to learn few things. It is the experience which teaches the most. When life has given us lessons, we should follow them whole heartedly. Being fickle will never help out (Don't even be in a company who is fickle). Either improve them or keep some distance. Well, those words might sound mean but so is the reality.

Being loud is lately been like being celebrity. There have been reality shows which award for being the loudest. Some have even made it as their profession. Like no matter you are right or wrong, voice out your opinion. Talk out loud. There is no need to understand the situation and realize the facts. The only need is to shout out until the ass bursts out.

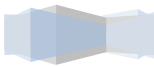

There are a category of free advisers where they have come out and announced that they are best in it. They have started earning for doing that. They don't research a problem. They are more like fiction writers. They see a situation and find out most suitable picture for the context which they either Google or Photoshop.

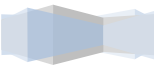

Then they make out stories out of it and read it aloud to the world. Looking at their great imagination powers to deceive people they have been hired by media to reach out larger audience. They are merging fiction and reality. We all have sides. We feel other side is unreal and one we trust is real. Look around for progress. Look around for real news. Look around for facts. Look around for truth. But don't look around for conclusions!

Life is such a horrible run. If we are not alert, people will push us inside shit pit and say 'we smell great'. They make us believe that it is the best we can get. Well, life has so many horrible runs. We must make sure that we don't participate in such marathons.

And this book is not about these kinds of runs. We have much better things to know and comprehend about.

17. Monkey or a Manager?

As we start our professional life, all we have in mind will be an excited journey. But then comes this one who is in higher position who either adds more colors to it or just ruins it. Most of us are lucky to work under horrible people. They crush the dreams in totality. They make one feel useless. Some stay there thinking they are actually useless and other make out a way and follow the path of their dreams.

It is optimistic to dream positive. It does not take much time to kill it. The surrounding environment keeps motivating to kill it. It shows and highlights all possible way that can go wrong. People in it leave behind a lot of influence. Only because they think it's impossible, they insist us the same. They say it's their age and experience and it is so wrong to advice that if they had never stepped on something challenging. If all they did was to hide and duck and felt that was the best thing to do, well, Error Number Zero Zero One!

Call someone a manager only if really knows how to manage the resource. Feel free to call a 'monkey' otherwise. No decision is ugly. It's only other people who make to look it so. Life has this run which impacts a lot more people on the go. Don't tell someone it is wrong to follow their passion. Every time when we say some one is wrong, we might be wrong too. Understand to differentiate between correcting a mistake and interrupting a passion.

Some managers keep looking out for problems. They see an opportunity in there and let you grow. Some monkeys keep looking out for problems. They see an opportunity there to push and blame you and enjoy.

There is professional life and there is personal life. Professional life should gel with personal life. Personal life should be steps of passion. It's okay to dream. Life is a run between profession and personal. This book is NOT about this run.

18. Loneliness Needs a Note

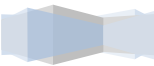

Dear Loneliness,

You just came out from nowhere and started making me fall apart.

You are tearing me up into pieces. You said you wanted a friend. You said you wanted a good company. When I was feeling a little weak, you came in uninvited. Now you have been digging my heart and mind down deep to bring out all the negative feelings. I have been careful. I did not want you to house in me. I have seen others struggling when you become their friend.

You know very well that we are not meant to lead a lonely life. Isolation is hell. I said we shall be friends so that you will stay away from me. That is what the friendship meant. Now please don't betray me. Let's be friends in a way it is supposed to be. Why do you scare people so much? You could be a little friendlier!

You know while writing this I realized something. You have only one form where as I have several forms. Each of my form has a context in a very meaningful way. Please understand. I don't want to be that blogger who scribbles heart breaking posts. Not that I don't understand the feeling one goes through in loneliness, which I have experienced too but I rather prefer happier ones.

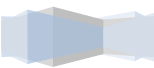

Yours faithfully,

- Togetherness.

‘Lone’ and ‘together’ cycle us through the life journey. Let us value togetherness more. But however let's NOT keep this run together with this book.

*A marathon was run,
To spread a message,
To keep the city clean!
A thousand participated,
All run in whites,
Water bottles, cups and tissues,
All over the streets!*

19. Pee for Patience

Can you believe there are courses which explain about how you can be happy in life? There are courses on anger management? And many such things which have recently come up! It's kind of intriguing when I read something like after a lot of research it is found that 'people who give more are more happy' or after research it was found that 'people need love and compassion than money' and what not!

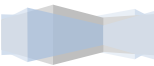

Was a research really necessary to prove that? Could that not be merely concluded on the basis of common sense? LOL. Yes. LOL. I am sure those researchers are already planning to write me a letter explaining what really it means and what it is! Well, I am a nasty expert! I talk shit at times. That is how I welcome troubles.

Research and findings have given out a lot of papers and conclusions. The social field researches involve experiments, surveys, tasks done over demography with varying numbers and several constraints. Without any such research I think I can list out theses following things which some might disagree and I very much agree to it.

There are always percentages for yes and no which sum up to hundred. Let us list them out.

- People who generally take public transport are happier than people who drive on everyday basis (May be to work place). Road has dynamics and it somehow keeps the driver unhappy.
- People who use limited social media are happier than people who use more. By limited I refer to one hour per day approximately.
- People who write daily dairy / blog / journals are more emotionally connected to people and objects than those who don't.
- People who have set of three to five friends are happier than those who have none, fewer or more than that mentioned number range.
- People who openly fight and argue are happier than people who control the anger.

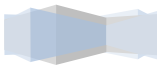

Does that make sense? Well, it does to me and I am somehow happy about it.

Very soon there will be a course on patience too. Wait, is there already one? It is a course as I imagine with following possible syllabus: How to react for every action, How to put statements in non offensive manner, How to behave on internet, how to talk with peers, elders and younger, how to listen to complete statements, how to comprehend things and what actually they mean, how to draw a meaning for statements in given context, how to deal with idiots, how to know you are the idiot and etc related.

Pee for patience is an interesting remedy. It is simple. Whenever you feel you might over react for a situation then go for pee. Go for long one if you feel you need more time.

Life run has so many diversions. It has so many branches. It has so many deviations. It has so many distractions. It has so many twigs. It has so many interruptions. It has so many disruptions. It has so many interludes. Yes. Patience! I know they all mean the same. This book is NOT about this run.

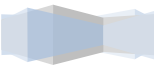

20. Fool? Who?

Fool the world and also be ready when the world will fool us back. There will be days where we will be happy because we fooled someone and one day we will realize the way it is getting back to us. We will be in such a situation that, we will be facing the consequences and not in position to explain it to anyone. It will back fire in such a way that we will keep experiencing it in a closed cover.

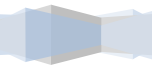

Let's not be happy because we humiliated and took down someone in front of other people. The moment we did, it has already started returning back to us. It will reach us back in no time. My grandmother used to say if we do any mistakes, we will face the consequences in the next life. Back then I used to believe that. Now, I don't. It won't take a life time for that. It will happen in next couple of days.

Don't try to fool the internet. It is already a fool. No worship will wash away the sins. Sins are taken down by the appropriate directly proportional punishment. The world has become such a magical place that we opt to fool ourselves a lot of times too.

We say 'yes' when it was supposed to be 'no'. We do the things which we wish we never did.

This book is NOT about explaining how foolish one is. It is inherent and it will persist.

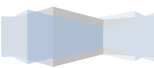

21. Pin the Problems

A lot of literature speaks about problems and how to tackle them. Problems: we learn from them, face it with courage, they bring life lessons etc etc. As we grow our life is filled with lessons and morals, Blah blah blah. We get advised from parents, teachers, elders, friends, to name a four.

Problem is not a person. Problem is a situation. It is an environment. We need to make sure that the problem stays inside the environment. If we generalize and make it big, it will lead to unwanted consequences.

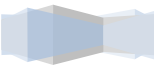

There are a lot of self help books on how to deal and dust the problems. If you were given a chance to define a problem, how would you do it? All in all, they come, they need to be dealt and they need to be overcome. That overcoming part has a lot of variants in it. We all have our own way of doing it.

No matter what environment we are in, there will always be a proper combination of good and bad. We should not be the one to resist the bad. We should be the one to support the good. No! They both are not the same. There is a lot of difference. We can opt to spend the energy in working against the bad. That way we will always keep complaining the system.

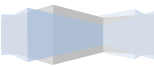

Or we can opt to support the good. There will be few in the same environment who will be striving to bring the best there. We must try to stand as a support to it. That could lead to a positive change in the near future. It might be difficult to find the good ones. Generally they are the silent ones. Distinction between the good ones and the noises may be little difficult but not that challenging too. We can always work on how we can make the surrounding a better place. Poke a finger on the right shoulder.

After having observed the environment keenly and people in it neatly, if we are still not able to figure out what exactly the problem is, then we must look within! We might be the problem. We cannot neglect the fact that we our self might be a problem.

No one might point it out and it's never too late to improve. Discussing the things out helps a lot of times.

Problems are part of our run. Let NOT discuss it here.

Run,

Outrun,

Overrun,

Inrun,

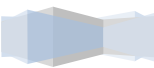

Runout,

Rerun,

Runoff,

Runway,

D-run-k!

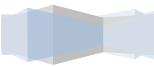

22. Everything Else

Apart from all mentioned, discussed, disagreed and debated so far, there might be a lot of things you would like to add too. For all that, yes, there is a mutual agreement and 'Run' is not about all that.

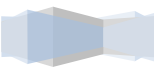

It's not about enjoying little things, it's not about exchanging ideas, it is not about listening to music, it is not about spending time with loved ones, it is not about fulfilling a dream, it's not about forwarding fake messages on WhatsApp, it's not about getting pissed off and sharing a feeling on Facebook, it's not about #tag war on twitter and it's not about ignoring the calls.

It's not about running away from responsibilities, it's not about silently enjoying the stupidity around, it's not about having a hobby, it's not about earning money and fame, it's not about killing an animal, it's not about hurting a feeling, it's not about avoiding what the heart says and it's not about being humiliated.

It's not about commenting on another's, it's not about having a trip, it's not about running a race to win a prize, it's not about any other such, it's not about making someone else suffer for our mistakes, it's not about proving our self that we are the best, it's not about how we hate a few things and a few people, it's not about travelling the world alone, it's not about new home we purchased, it's not about a pen or ink, it's not about a garden which blooms flowers and raises the thorns and it's not about hero and heroine.

It's not about the love or sex, it's not about a thriller television soap, It's not about a reality show, It's not about the roads, flyovers and bridges, it's not about the laptop and mobiles, It's not about the what to and what not to, It's not about the plans, it's not about preparing a to-do list, it's not about the startups and it's not about the awards. Okay! Let's get this real.

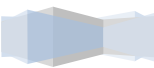

Congratulations!

You have completed the Run and we have reached our destination.

It is not only the path, but destination is beautiful too.

Let's start the RUN.

The Real one.

23. The Real Run

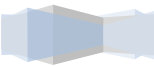

Here we are, finally, discussing about the Run. It's not me being adamant that this is the real run. It's only me being and saying that this is the run which is close to my heart. This run is a liberator.

runs of untamed mind, controlled by the concerned heart,
prisons the feelings.

I have the following set of questions:

- Is there a tiny place in your heart which houses some undisclosed desires which you have never expressed to anyone?
- Are there certain things which also identify your character but not recognized by anybody besides?
- Do you have a set of mysterious activities which you happily do and don't want to attach the tag of right or wrong to it?

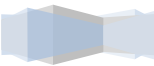

- Do you wish for few things which you cannot pursue only because of several external influences?
- Do you do a few things with an invisibility cloak just because it is not accepted in your boundaries?

You need not answer them. If you make a close observation they all mean the same at a very higher level. But when we get to specifics, we might have answer to one, few or none of it. Run is all about this. Let me alert well in advance that watching porn in a closed room is not the run. Having a fake account on a social networking for unnecessary things is not the run. Run is not the depression of lost love. It might be a run but not THIS run.

brain has fantasies,

brain doesn't know direction,

brain sure has no brain.

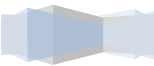

Secretly we all might be running for something else too. It's that run which our even loved ones don't know yet. It's that run which is a total different world to one. Even the closest of us is not aware that we have been having this run. Not all these are bad ones. There are near to heart ones. The destinations ideal to us might be ugly to another and we might have refrained from expressing it.

Furtively, it is this run which keeps us going. With every sunrise it gives the hope that things might change tomorrow. We are certainly sure that things might not change. But some where a tiny part of the heart and mind says 'it might'. Run is a hope for better tomorrow. Run is a positive belief.

Run is a matured happiness. Run is accepting the world as is and knowing that there can be a self imagined fictional happy place. Run is looking out for beauty in everything.

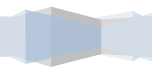

Run is that smile we can carry on our face in spite of understating all the falseness world houses. Run is the calmness.

to that happy world,
where heart rejoices with content, mind happily runs.

Run is those certain moments which we enjoy the most and we know that it can never be so for all the time. We know that the time around is temporary and all we want to do is to feel each and every second of it. It's a totally different character of one.

Run influences the decisions. To the world out there it is the decision we made. But to us we know the reason behind, which we don't want to explain. It is the silent enjoyment which heart rejoices. At times it wants us to shout it out to the world.

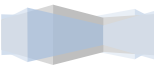

Run goes out as a message in a crypt form. The message is hidden in the story, between the words, amidst the characters and only the writer knows the inner meaning of it. Run is beauty. Run is love and more.

At other times it makes us feel ‘why does even this world exists which cannot help us in realizing our run’. Run is the mixture of emotions. Run gives no confusion to decide on something. Run is knowing the right.

Run makes us to imagine our dream world. We design and give the structure to this world. In reality though it is possible, it can never happen. Run is about the little talk heart does to god complaining him why is the world around so cruel.

Not everyone gets a chance to enjoy this run. It takes more than inner peace. It is more than completing the assigned responsibilities. If I had to explain all this run in one sentence, though not complete, I would put it the following way:

“Given a chance that things would still be good around,
We would have definitely eloped to that,
for forever.”

Yes, ‘RUN’ it is! And at this moment I would like to repeat these lines,

*“If you can follow the silence,
If you can love the hate,
If there is thyself in those eyes,
If gestures make the talk,
If you can sparkle in the bright,
If you can breathe the breathe,
If you can forget who you are,
You have started the RUN.”*

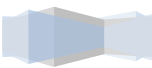

24. End Notes

This has been like my dream project which is now a realization. There was always a thrust in mind to write something very close to heart. This has been one of it and may be the first of it. I now have an exertion which I can claim to be my dear darling.

I would like to thank all the people around me who have inspired me to put this together. I would like to thank for showing me the essence of life. In the process I have learnt that it is perspectives which can congregate the observations. A lot many thanks to social networking sites which have taught me how to differentiate between the real and reel and how to suck the stupidity out of me.

At times when we are too tired and saturated all we need is a soothing music and a good sleep. To that I go this time!

Needles to mention, I have directory named 'Life is Beautiful' on the desktop of my laptop and I stop-over to that when I am tired, saturated or feeling emotionless. All it has is,

- Pictures of people close to me and the ones who make me happy
- A collection of my favorite songs from atleast ten different languages
- Movies I love to watch again and again
- My favorite Youtube videos
- Awesome and meaningful quotes and as well some really good articles, a few of mine too
- Some of the notes I have written to define my life and the motto I should live for

And there you go! On a very lighter note, don't take anything seriously. Most importantly the contents of this book! We all have choices, decisions and opinions and book is a way of shouting them out loud. It can be listened and ignored or totally ignored.

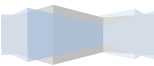

High-five if you agree. You have found a companion.

beliefs, disbelief's,

agrees and the disagrees,

joker from the circus.
